The GIS scanner type I'd like to use is looking into my memories via a brain thing that is non-invasive, and the scan is run by me taking notes on my phone based on what I see and what I'll call them and then there will be Pass, Fail, or Private Script. Nothing else. But the GIS scanner is integrative via a brain scan and it would connect between my brain and my phone and I will take notes on my phone of the changes I want. That's how that's going to work.